Project Scenario

Travel planet earth as a water molecule. Begin your journey as a water molecule in the local drinking water source, make your way around planet earth water cycling across at least three different continents before returning to the home drinking water source. On each continent, you will move through the majority of the water cycle before moving to the next continent. During the round trip, your water molecules must move through every water phase and every water cycle process at least once.